

Programme Specific Outcome-Sociology Honours

A bachelor's degree in sociology honours can enable students to pursue master's degree and sit for exams which can qualify them for lectureship in various colleges and universities.

Sociology graduates can pursue a teaching career in high school and other coaching centres.

Graduated Students in sociology can pursue master's of social work and can work with NGOS, communities catering to social work and other related institutions.

Sociology graduates can be involved in policy making bodies of various institutions.

Sociology graduates can opt for a career in counselling as consultants and life coaches important matters such as relationships, career, well-being.

A degree in sociology can be a step to building and creating future sociologists.